The Afternoon Game, and Lewis,

THE AFTERNOON GAME.

THE AFTERNOON GAME,

The game was called at the usual time, and Mr. Phelan failing to put in au appearance, Mr. Mitchell, who was on the ground, was pressed into service, and the result was that a very line game of ball followed. This game was refreshing from the fact that not a sin gie kick was made about anything or gle kick was made about anything or anybody. But the players seemed to play as if they had implicit confidence in Mr. Mitchell's fairness and knowledge of the game, and acted as if -they were alive and fuil of that article so of ten referred to as giuger.

It was worth the price of admission to sit in comfort and not be disturbed by rank umpiring and the incessant kicking that naturally follows. Norfolk won this game because she carned it by playing better all round ball and it by playing better all round ball and bunching her hits when runs were badly needed, and unfortunately for the visitors when this occasion did arise there was some member of their team who would make a serious blun der, which the "Clams" were quick to profit by, and, the whole thing in a nut shell, is that the "Clams" have just increased their percentage, while floan ke has dropped down correjust increased their percentage, while stoam he has dropped down correspondingly. The Roanoke team is a fine aggregation of ball players, and they are gentlemanly with it.

But when they meet the Norfolks they meet foemen worthy of their steel, for individually and collectively there is no stronger team in the State, and the beauty of it is, they are improving in their work day after day, and if this team had concluded to take a brace and show the people what they and if this team had concluded to take a brace and show the people what they could have done, say two months ago, there is no reason why they should not now be disputing second place with Lynchburg, or fighting for first place with Richmond, who went down three games in succession before the Roan.

Appendix the League except Richmond has suffered and suffered severely from this dargeravating source. Five umpires the thought they owed their positions to Richmond, so acted accordingly, and when a umpire didn't suit Richmond, who went down three games in succession before the Roan.

oke's, who Norfolk can beat twice in all. Let's break this up and have a one day. Score:
